INTRODUCTION

Marriage is an important aspect of Catholic life. In the Catholic view, marriage is not just a fulfillment of instinct, but is a bond sacred to God (Fautngiyanan & Refo, 2018; Sukendar et al., 2021). Based on the Book of Genesis, marriage is understood as a union planned by God from the beginning, in which a man and a woman unite as one flesh. Fidelity in marriage is seen as a reflection of God's faithfulness to His people. For Catholics, preparation before entering marriage is very important (Mudjiyo, 2017; Wahyu et al., 2020). This preparation includes understanding the meaning of marriage, the responsibilities of husband and wife, and readiness to form a family based on faith. The Marriage Preparation Course is an important means of providing provision and assistance to prospective couples before they enter into marriage.

Education plays a crucial role in preparing Catholics to understand the meaning and responsibilities of marriage (Medina, 2023; Tong et al., 2021; Wilcox & Lewandowski, 2018). Through various teaching materials and courses, Catholics are given in-depth knowledge and understanding of the essence of marriage as a partnership of life that is sacred by God. This education also helps build a strong commitment to building a harmonious family based on the values of faith. The main principle in education is to help increase the efficiency of the learning process (Arjusi & Alfiana, 2023; Wickens & Norris, 2018). In the context of marriage preparation courses, this efficiency includes improving the quality of learning, saving time, increasing capacity without reducing quality, and reducing costs without reducing quality. With effective education, Catholics can be better prepared and qualified to enter the sacred bond of marriage.

With the creation of teaching materials, the author thinks and believes that a special book can be created which contains teaching materials/teaching materials for the implementation of the Marriage Preparation Course (Lon, 2020). This is intended to make it easier for supervisors to carry out their teaching duties, bearing in mind that not all of these officers have basic religious or theological education. This material can also be used by course participants to study materials that must be studied and understood as provisions for forming understanding and helping participants in making commitments related to how to form a good Catholic family.

This research is in line with research conducted by Fautngilyanan & Refo (2018), but there is still a lack of direct involvement from the community's perspective in the research process. In particular, the opinions and direct experiences of couples who have taken marriage preparation courses or received pastoral care are not fully reflected in the analysis. Thus, there is an opportunity for further research to further explore the perspectives of the faithful and evaluate the effectiveness of existing pastoral programs involving the active participation of Catholics in St. Mary's Parish. Teresia Jambi.

The aim of this research is to investigate the dynamics of Catholic marriages in the Parish of St. Teresia Jambi and understands pastoral practices related to the preparation and formation of couples before and after marriage. Through an in-depth analysis of the backgrounds of Catholics in the region, the research aims to identify the challenges faced by couples in maintaining loyalty to Catholic teachings in their married life. Apart from that, this research also aims to contribute to the development of more effective pastoral strategies in supporting the formation of strong and harmonious families in accordance with Catholic teachings.

This approach allowed the researcher to explore in depth the complex issues related to the lack of adequate teaching materials in the course (Anif et al., 2020; Irmayanti et al., 2023; Marshel & Ratnawulan, 2020). With a focus on in-depth understanding, this research aims to identify and resolve the basic problems faced by course organizers (Hamdo, 2022; Muir et al., 2020; Mustofa & Hidayah, 2020).

Research Target/Subject

After that, the researcher asked for the necessary permission and coordination before starting data collection. The next step involves identifying relevant respondents, such as mentor groups and course participants, and establishing appropriate data collection techniques, such as direct interviews and questionnaires. All stages of research procedures were carried out taking into account research ethics and the accuracy of the data required for in-depth analysis (Jumainah & Nurfayati, 2020; Ramadhanti et al., 2022; Simamora & Manurung, 2021).

Instruments, and Data Collection Techniques

The instruments and data collection techniques used in this research were designed to gain a comprehensive understanding of the Catholic marriage preparation course at St. Mary's Parish, Teresia Jambi. The researcher used face-to-face interviews to gain in-depth insight from the mentor group and course participants, allowing them to express their experiences, views, and hopes for the course. In addition, the researcher also implemented a questionnaire to collect data in a more structured manner from a small group of mentors and participants, which allowed for a more detailed analysis of their perceptions and responses to the course materials and learning approaches used. This combination of instruments and techniques allows researchers to obtain comprehensive and representative information necessary to paint an accurate picture of course implementation and the challenges faced by participants (Chusni et al., 2022; Lubis et al., 2022; Schallert et al., 2022).

Data analysis techniques

Data collected from interviews and questionnaires underwent rigorous qualitative analysis techniques. This systematic approach involved referencing pertinent learning theories and the design of teaching materials developed within the study. Through meticulous examination, the data yielded patterns, findings, and implications that are integral to this research endeavor. This methodical process ensured a comprehensive understanding of the data, facilitating the identification of significant insights and actionable outcomes.

And the teaching materials in question are teaching materials that are prepared in the form of written modules.

Making the syllabus needs to be done by the teacher, instructor, a companion before the teacher or tutor makes a learning plan for each meeting. In this research, research results can be obtained, that according to the respondents, in this case the companion, tutor or teacher of the Marriage Preparation Course, that the syllabus is very important in implementing the course at St. Teresa Jambi. The presence of a clearly detailed syllabus can be useful as a guide in further learning development, such as creating a learning plan. Apart from that, according to respondents who filled out the questionnaire in this study, in general, the syllabus was useful as a guide for planning the management of learning activities in the Marriage Preparation Course at St. Teresa Jambi, for example classical learning, small group learning. Apart from that, the syllabus is also very useful for developing an assessment system.

Marriage preparation course teaching materials are media and learning resources that have a strategic position, because the teaching materials presented provide relatively operational information or descriptions for managing the learning process in the Marriage Preparation Course at St. Teresa Jambi. The argument underlying this is based on respondent data which generally states that teaching materials are a means to assist teaching and learning activities in the Marriage Preparation Course.
Apart from the data, respondents also stated that the teaching materials provide guidelines for course participants for the purpose of learning to prepare a household independently or in scheduled face-to-face meetings.

Teaching Materials for the Marriage Preparation Course at St. Teresia Jambi is also equipped with methods and evaluations, guidelines for learning or course participants, companions and tutors. The argument underlying this is that teaching materials that are structured systematically and in detail will really help teachers or mentors, marriage course participants or prospective marriage partners in understanding the material discussed in the ongoing course process.

Based on research data from respondents in the field, information was gathered that the teaching materials presented were very easy to learn, comprehend and understand. Teaching Materials for the Marriage Preparation Course at St. Teresia Jambi can make things easier for mentors and study participants. Teaching materials that can facilitate learning are materials that have clear components in the form of: (1) general learning objectives, (2) specific learning objectives, (3) specific instructions for using teaching materials, (4) descriptions of lesson content that are arranged systematically, (5) pictures or illustrations to clarify lesson content, (6) summary, (7) formative evaluation, (8) reading list, and (9) answer key.

The teaching materials that are arranged can be said to be simple because they are prepared using straightforward language and also the language of everyday communication. It is hoped that this condition will make it easier for mentors to understand and convey the content of the material in the learning course. Apart from that, it is not difficult for participants to study the diktats or textbooks that have been prepared by themselves.

Another problem that also needs to be considered is sometimes experiencing difficulty in taking notes or writing learning content. This difficulty is caused by many factors. First, not all participants who take part in marriage preparation courses can capture and record all the learning content well and in full. Second, not all teachers can communicate and explain learning content well, perhaps too quickly or other distractions. Third, limited learning facilities and infrastructure mean that teachers cannot provide good teaching. These difficulties can be overcome with the help of written notes in the form of teaching materials prepared by the teacher concerned (Arent et al., 2020; Petersburton & Stehle, 2019; Telegina et al., 2019). Teaching materials are learning content contained in books written by teachers or other authors for learning purposes.

The teaching material book contains material that will be discussed in the lesson. The aim is to help simplify the learning process for marriage preparation course participants, so its preparation requires special requirements (Fadlilah, 2022; Mirawati & Sikarni, 2023; Nursyamsiah, 2022). This teaching material has a limited function in order to provide a complete orientation regarding theory, understanding and application or implementation of teachings. The teaching materials contained in the marriage course preparation book are different from other books in general. Physical marriage preparation course teaching materials include readers, diktats, and textbooks.

Course teaching materials are prepared by collecting relevant writings (clippings) from various existing selected reading sources, and are oriented for learning purposes. Readers are the starting material for preparing diktats or modules. Marriage preparation modules or teaching materials are further developments from readers which have been repeatedly evaluated and refined. Further development of the marriage preparation module is continuously being refined to be used as a teaching material for marriage preparation courses in the Catholic Church in general.

Marriage preparation course participants are also more interested in studying the learning materials because the teaching materials have been arranged in an orderly manner (Fautngilyanan & Refo, 2018). This teaching material will be more valuable for those who are less able to record teaching content. The availability of teaching materials allows students to reduce their note-taking activities so that they can have more time to understand a lesson. The available teaching material products also enable marriage preparation course participants at St. Teresia Jambi to discuss further the teaching material. Finally, teaching materials really help teachers, tutors and marriage preparation course participants to carry out teaching and learning without wasting a lot of time, and the available teaching material products are also equipped with assignments and exercises for course participants.
designing learning products or teaching materials for marriage preparation at St. Teresia Jambi in particular was developed with descriptions of various existing learning sources. The teaching materials for the marriage preparation course are intended specifically for marriage preparation course participants, or prospective couples who will enter into a Catholic marriage. However, it does not rule out the possibility that the available marriage preparation course teaching materials can also be used as reading material and information for anyone who needs information about marriage. The aims and benefits of preparing marriage preparation teaching materials are prepared with the aim of providing teaching materials that suit the demands of marriage preparation course participants or prospective Catholic couples by taking into account the needs of course participants, namely teaching materials that suit the characteristics and setting or social environment and the challenges of the times. Apart from that, the available teaching material books can also help marriage preparation course participants in obtaining alternative teaching materials besides textbooks which are sometimes difficult to obtain.

Apart from that, the benefits of developing teaching materials for marriage preparation courses for teachers and course participants are: Obtain teaching materials that are in accordance with curriculum demands and in accordance with the learning needs of marriage preparation course participants at St. Teresia Jambi. No longer dependent on textbooks which are sometimes difficult to obtain. Enriching because it was developed using various references. Increasing teachers' knowledge and experience in writing teaching materials. Building effective learning communication between teachers and marriage preparation course participants because marriage preparation course participants will feel more trusting.

This research is in line with research conducted by Onyeator & Okpara (2019) however, the research process still lacks direct engagement from the community's viewpoint. Specifically, the insights and firsthand accounts of couples who have participated in marriage preparation courses or received pastoral care are not entirely considered in the study. This presents an opening for additional research to delve deeper into the perspectives of the faithful and assess the efficacy of current pastoral initiatives that involve active participation from Catholics in St. Mary's Parish.

The implications of this research are very important to consider in the development of educational and pastoral policies and programs in St. Teresia Jambi. The results of this research can be a basis for stakeholders to develop more effective strategies in providing pre-family education and marriage preparation courses. In addition, a deeper understanding of the meaning and values of Catholic marriage can make a significant contribution to strengthening family bonds and strengthening the spiritual foundations of the congregation. By paying attention to these implications, it is hoped that the people of St. Teresia Jambi can feel the real benefits of this research in improving the quality of family and spiritual life.

The novelty of this research lies in the holistic approach used in exploring the dynamics of Catholic marriages in the Parish of St. Teresia Jambi. By combining theological, social and psychological aspects, this research provides a more comprehensive understanding of the complexity of the institution of marriage in the context of the religious and social life of Catholic society. In addition, the focus on pre-family education and marriage preparation courses as potential preventive measures against problems in marriage, adds a new dimension to pastoral strategies to strengthen family ties and improve the spiritual well-being of the congregation. Thus, this research can be a valuable contribution in the development of pastoral practices and ecclesiastical policies that are relevant to the social realities and spiritual needs of Catholics in St. Mary's Parish, Teresia Jambi.

CONCLUSION

The syllabus/teaching materials for marriage preparation courses are a basic requirement for the proper implementation of the course. Based on the research results, the design of teaching materials is very adequate to provide training for course participants in building a responsible Catholic family. Using teaching materials still requires creativity and innovation from supervisors to create effective learning. As times change rapidly, this teaching material remains open to be submitted and developed according to the demands of the times.
